VESTA

KITCHENS

In 1996, I joined my husband, William Rodon Hornof in his architectural practice – 2RZ Architecture. We developed our business on the principles that if you provide excellent design and stellar customer service, your business will be successful. The foundation of 2RZ Architecture is Residential Design and I brought the focus of Kitchen Design to the practice.

In 2003, we moved to our current location and in 2006, we opened Vesta as true a Kitchen Design Studio. We have always believed that planning a new kitchen is the opportunity to redefine the character of one's home. In opening the studio, it allowed us to channel our kitchen design abilities into one highly specialized arena and to bring together cabinetry, fixtures and finishes to design living spaces rich in both style and comfort in a way that most homeowners could never begin to dream of.

One of the most successful ways to do this is to align ourselves with talented and resourceful vendors. We have forged a solid working relationship with Karina Becker and BeckerWorks that makes our business successful. We know that we can always rely on excellent workmanship and customer service that always goes above and beyond our expectations. The attention to detail is spot on and can be the defining detail of our finished products!

A new kitchen is the opportunity to define the character of one's home.

We developed our business on the principles that if you provide excellent design and stellar customer service, your business will be successful.

One of our favorite projects combined both the resources of Vesta, 2RZ and BeckerWorks. Our client purchased two units in a high-rise and asked us to combine the spaces so that there would be emphasis on the amazing views but creating functional spaces. In tearing down as many of the walls as possible and exposing the windows from all vantage points, we were able to take advantage of the open floor plan yet define the areas. The client gave us the reigns so that we could drive the design process in a creative, cool and hip manner. The client was thrilled with the end result and the space is nothing short of magnificent.
